

Jack
Wolfskin

LEAVE YOUR FOOTPRINT AT JACK WOLFSKIN

With your help, we want to continue to stand out from the crowd as a brand for perfect outdoor equipment: customer-focused, friendly and with a passion for the great outdoors.

Your adventure begins at the Headquarter Idstein as soon as possible in our Department Apparel Fabric Development as Manager Fabric Development Apparel (m/f/d).

Your challenge!

- Sourcing, development and material management of fabrics and materials in the context of collection planning, with a focus on sustainable products
- Quality control and assurance measures
- Performing physical material tests and evaluating and assessing them
- Collaboration with suppliers and respect of the development schedule
- Obtaining and evaluating price quotations
- Keeping data in the collection database and providing product information to PM, sales and marketing
- Support in project related working groups for Head of Innovation and Technology Apparel
- Close cooperation with the interface departments (Vendor Control, PM, Design, Purchase, Trimming, Sourcing / Pricing)
- Travel to national and international events and suppliers

Your DNA Jack Wolfskin:

- Completed studies in the field of textile design, textile technology, product management or 3-5 years of professional experience in a comparable position
- Profound knowledge of textile production processes and textile technical knowledge and analysis methods (especially about functional outdoor materials)
- Experience in assessing product quality and supplier performance
- Good overview of the current state of the art and sustainable products
- Good understanding of processes and quality
- Experience in communicating with external business partners (especially from Far East)
- "out-of-the-box" thinking
- Responsible and independent, solution-oriented working style
- Team player with a high level of loyalty and social competence and clear in communication
- User knowledge of Microsoft Office and a product management tool
- Good English skills, both written and spoken

Take your future into your own hands. We are looking forward to your online Application. Please tell us your salary expectations and your earliest possible starting date.