MUNICH – Textile manufacturer ISKO has launched the fifth generation of its Arquas collection which is said to combine the company's expertise in woven technologies with the functional properties expected of high performance sportswear and activewear.

Showcased at last week's Performance Days trade fair, the Arquas fabric collection has been tipped to serve five key areas across the functional apparel markets, with the advanced textiles tailored for use in activewear, outerwear, golf apparel, horse riding apparel and finally hybrid applications; which integrate performance features from water repellency to windproofness.
