Visitor numbers up at Performance Days

There were more than 2,200 visitors to the recent Performance Days exhibition in Munich (May 8-9), the organisers have said. This is a 20% increase compared to the number for the spring 2018 edition of the event.

May's show, the second to take place at the Messe München site, had 'The Beauty of Function' as its focus topic.

The next edition of Performance Days will take place from November 13-14. Before that, the organisers will continue their collaboration with US group Reed Exhibitions to host two events in the US.

The Functional Fabric Fair made its debut in 2018, with a show in New York. This will take place again from July 22-23. It will be joined by a second event in Portland, which will have its first edition from October 22-23.
